Legal and Policy Aspects of Home
 Care Coverage S. MITCHELL WEITZMAN 1

Home health care is a compassionate, cost-effective, and practical alternative for some individuals who require long-term or constant care. However, the coverage of home health care costs is far from comprehensive under the Medicare, Medicaid, and private pay systems. A uniform and comprehensive coverage system is necessary.

Patching the Patchwork Quilt: "Reforming" the Medicaid
 Program—The Medicaid Voluntary Contribution and Provider-
 Specific Tax Amendments of 1991 MICHAEL O. SPIVEY 37

Congress modified the Medicaid program by restricting states' sources of funding, capping payments to certain hospitals, and altering the relationship between the states and the federal government. While the legislation puts to rest an ongoing dispute between the state and federal governments, it does not improve access to or quality of care nor address fundamental problems with the Medicaid program; it is simply another patch to the patch-work quilt called Medicaid.

Application of the Medicare and Medicaid Anti-Kickback Statute to Business Arrangements Between Hospitals and Hospital-Based Physicians HUGH E. AARON 53

Hospitals and hospital-based physicians enter into a variety of agreements. Given the recent advisory memorandum from the Inspector General of Health and Human Services and a recent administrative decision, these arrangements may violate the Medicare Anti-Kickback statute.

Internal Revenue Service General Counsel's Memorandum Threatens Tax Exemption for Charitable Hospitals DAVID W. BALL 71

A recent memorandum from the General Counsel of the Internal Revenue Service changes the standard against which tax exempt entities will be measured, which change can adversely affect charitable hospitals' tax exempt status. In addition, the memorandum makes clear that a violation of the Anti-Kickback statute, discussed in Mr. Aaron's article, is inconsistent with tax exempt status.

Antitrust in the Early 1990's: Challenges to New Competitive Strategies ALAN P. SHERBROOKE 79

The early 1990's brought a number of cases that raise challenges to new competitive strategies. As health care providers seek to gain a competitive advantage, courts are being asked to review practices under antitrust laws.

Physician Credentialing in Managed Care	ALAN BLOOM	93
The managed care industry is increasingly using physician credentialing when seeking health care providers. The credentialing process must be conducted in a manner that meets the goals of the managed care program.
Whether a Genetic Defect Is a Disability Under the Americans With Disabilities Act: Preventing Genetic Discrimination by Employers	CHARLES B. GURD	107
The Americans with Disabilities Act will not protect all forms of discrimination based upon one's genetic make up. Legislation is needed to prevent genetic discrimination.
AIDS in the Healthcare Workplace: Rights and Responsibilities	CAROL J. GERNER	119
With the increasing spread of AIDS and HIV, courts are confronted with the task of balancing the need of public disclosure of a healthcare worker's HIV status against that individual's right to privacy.
Using Good Samaritan Acts to Provide Access to Health Care for the Poor: A Modest Proposal	BRIDGET A. BURKE	139
Some states are providing immunity to those willing to voluntarily provide health care for the poor. The proposal is a modest and questionable step toward solving the health care access dilemma.
