EDITOR'S NOTE

Dear Reader:

On Friday, April 17, 2009, antitrust scholars from Europe and North America met in Cambridge, Massachusetts to discuss Antitrust and the Rule of Law. This meeting, co-sponsored by the Loyola University Chicago Institute for Consumer Antitrust Studies and the Competition Law Forum (CLF) of the British Institute of International and Comparative Law, was the third in the series of Antitrust Marathons. The roundtable discussion was convened to address a series of issue papers related to Antitrust and the Rule of Law from a comparative perspective. The discussion was based on a series of short issue papers about different aspects of the rule of law in both American antitrust law and EU competition law.

The Loyola Consumer Law Review is excited to present the reader with a complete transcript of the event, with minimal alterations. Issue papers prepared for the discussion define the scope of each segment and precede three of the four sections of the transcript. This was done in order to provide the reader with a greater contextual understanding of the discussion. We believe this format will make this important conversation more approachable.

Enjoy,
